Ad Text Excuse me... WHAT?!?

Taxpayers Spend $3.5 Million to Find Out Why Lesbians Are Fat
A U.S. Health and Human Services study to understand why lesbians are fat has now cost taxpayers over $3.5 million to-date.

The study, "Sexual Orientation and Obesity: A Test of a Gendered Biopsychosocial Model," seeks to determine why there is a disparity in the obesity rates between straight women and lesbian women and straight men and gay men.

Oh God!! It made you look the fools! People overeat when they are unhappy with themselves and their lives! Not only lesbians! And we have enough reasons! First of all - your research!!!It's humiliating!

Ad Text Congratulations! Now we have the Gay Scouts of America!

The Boy Scouts of America Executive Committee unanimously approved allowing gay adults to serve as leaders, officials said on Monday, in a major step toward dismantling a policy that has caused deep rifts in the 105-year-old organization.

This resolution will allow chartered organizations to select adult leaders without regard to sexual orientation, continuing Scouting's longstanding policy of chartered organizations selecting their leaders.

The Boy Scouts of America's ban on gay adults has stood as a towering example of explicit, institutional homophobia in one of America's most important and recognizable civic organizations.

This is a step in the right direction, but we're still really concerned that there are still going to be groups that are going to be hostile to gay leaders... This story certainly brought out the haters and the loony "Christians." They've lost so many cultural battles in their effort to keep us all in the middle ages that I think it's unhinged most of them!

Ad Text SOLDIER SHANE.

Recently Pentagon confirmed plan to lift ban on transgender military service. Let's meet the big player in repealing the ban.

Sergeant Shane Ortega, 28, doesn't stand out or appear out of the ordinary among his fellow Army soldiers.

But there's one thing that differs him from the bulk of troops. Shane is the first openly trans soldier of the US Army.

He's astonishingly handsome, he works out constantly (check out his muscular build), he covered in tattoos, he's part black, Latino and Cherokee, he's obsessed with his girlfriend (a former model and aspiring doctor); and he gets giddy talking about both video games and chopping wood in Alaska.

Yet despite his solid performance and commitment to serve, SGT Ortega has been at risk of getting kicked out of the Army because in official Army paperwork, he is identified as a woman.

But the real warriors never surrender! Ortega struggled for the equal rights for the transgender people in the military. And he succeeded!

America's military progressing slowly towards inclusion and equal opportunity. Let's hope that these changes'll ensure peace, instead of waging more war.

Ad Text Please... STOP DISCRIMINATION AGAINST HOMOSEXUAL TEACHERS!!

After eight years on the job, Margie Winters was fired as director of religious education at Waldron Mercy Academy outside Philadelphia not because she just married her wife, but because some parents just found out that she's been married for all eight years.

Unfortunately LGBT teachers have long understood that openly expressing their identity in school can make them an easy target for discrimination. It is the biggest mistake!

When students perceive that they're not supposed to talk about homosexuality, they conclude that there must be something wrong about being gay. And it's a dangerous message that can lead to bullying and harassment.

Gay teachers need to serve as example for kids! It's very powerful both for straight students and for LGBT students to know that they have teachers and people they respect who are LGBT and who are good at their jobs. It's important for all students to see that nothing to be ashamed! And it must be illegal for employers to discriminate against employees based on their actual or perceived sexual orientation!

Ad Text Homophobic nurse tries to discourage birth mom from allowing gay couple to adopt child

While the birth mother was resting with the baby, Andy and his partner took a break from the hospital to get some food. When they returned, they had a flurry of phone messages from the mother, crying and urging them to get back soon. A nurse had been questioning her about her decision to let a gay couple adopt her baby.

"Aren't you afraid those boys are gonna hurt that baby? Aren't you afraid that he's not gonna grow up and be normal?" asked the nurse.

Excuse me who the hell is she?! This bigot is forcing her views onto the mother, because she doesn't think the baby would grow up "normal"? A mother who's making the difficult decision to place her son up for adoption, and a wonderful couple who wants to raise that child. What the hell right does the nurse have to try to stop that? I hope they fire her.

I'm happy for the Gay couple on becoming parents!

Ad Text Nature chooses who will be transgender; individuals don't choose this

We received a letter... the history of life...

«Hello! Just wanted to see if you could share my coming out as trans story on your page. I have been on a long, rough journey to this point and I think my story could help younger trans youth see that no matter how bad it gets it always gets better. I would really appreciate this because I want to become someone who inspires the LGBT community to be themselves!

Ever since I was little, I knew I was different. I wasn't like any of the other kids. I had a unique way of thinking and often that left me isolated. Something I still feel the sting of today. Unlike most boys who played with Spiderman and Superman action figures when they were little, I played with barbies... I wanted to look like them. I wanted to be them. It felt right playing with these dolls. I had to hide when I did it though because even at an early age, I knew boys weren't supposed to play with dolls. Once I had gotten caught by my grandmother's ex husband and he told me to put them away and stop being a sissy...."

Please spend 5 minutes to read this letter... it is very important just to be heart...

Thank you for your brave act! You are a true hero!

Please share your stories and photos.... Inspire us and others!

A man in Alabama collapsed and died after officers sprayed him with pepper spray while arresting him after a chase, Tuscaloosa police said Saturday.

Police said Ware ran into nearby woods and struggled with officers when they caught up with him. Officers sprayed him with oleoresin capsicum, more commonly known as pepper spray, according to police. The chemical agent debilitates a person by causing temporary blindness and irritating a person's nose and throat.

The six officers who were involved in Ware's case will remain on duty during an investigation, according to police. Officials said police car dash cam and body camera footage of the incident would be released after that investigation.

This tragedy happen accidentally, and probably the police officers didn't wish death upon him, because they tried to give him first aid. However, the man is dead and there is no chance to rewind and bring him back. He's gone forever, but the cops will remain on duty and get away with this murder. Is this acceptable?

We will know about he process of detention after the investigation is over. Let's wait and keep our eyes open. Black Lives Matter!

Ad Text Unarmed Black Man On A Horse Allegedly Strangled To Death By White Cop In Mississippi

One of the last things that Jonathan Sanders, an unarmed black man, reportedly said before he died was, "Let me go. I can't breathe." On Wednesday night, a white police officer in the small town of Stonewall, Mississippi allegedly strangled Sanders, a 39-year-old black horseman, with a flashlight before killing him in view of his family members.

Officer Kevin Herrington pulled Sanders off a horse and choked him with a flashlight, Sander's attorney, Stewart Parrish, initially told an ABC affiliate. Parrish later clarified that those allegations came from family members who witnessed the death. Parrish said that Sanders experienced "some kind of asphyxiation" during the altercation. Sanders died on the scene and leaves behind two children.

The last words of Eric Garner were "I can't breathe," the last words of Jonathan Sanders were "I can't breathe, let me go". Biting irony, isn't it? Since when is it illegal to train your horse in close proximity to your house? America was always (and it is now) a police state for black people.

Ad Text Ta-Nehisi Coates on growing up in West Baltimore

The famous African-American writer Ta-Nehisi Coates grew up in West Baltimore with people who lost a child whether to the streets, to guns or to jail. Today, his goal is to protect his son from the different forms of violence that he experienced in school and on the streets.

People of color have been dealing with injustice ever since they crossed the North American continent. For instance, in West Baltimore, Ta-Nehisi was trained not to go to the neighborhoods unless you know this place. He was told that you cannot tolerate anybody attempting any physically violent threat to you. Moreover, his mom was feared that her children would get arrested.

What does it mean? Undoubtedly, black Americans were afraid of police, improper procedure, injustice or what is worse, being killed by police officer. That's why the nationwide furor over the growing number of unarmed black men fatally shot by police officers has put the public on a new trend in America. In fact, this new trend caused disproportionate number of unarmed people of color killed by police.

How dangerous is to live in your area today?

Ad Text Black church vandalized for the third time in a row on Florida's Space Coast. Was it a hate-crime?

A predominantly Melbourne black church was vandalized for the third time in six months. According to the Melbourne Police Department, the vandal bought axes to chop through access points to get in. Church Bishop Jacquelyn Gordon said that the church was in the process of development since they moved two years ago into 125,000 foot industrial complex.

Moreover, the message "SS Charleston 2" was found on the car nearby the Church, which raised concerns about church security. SS Charleston 2 indicates the tragedy in Charleston when nine people were shot to death by white supremacist Dylann Roof at Emanuel AME church. Before, the church members found the words "We see u" that were painted in the radical emblem of the Nazi party swastika.

How many hateful people living in America today? What of these people are getting their hatred and racism from their parents or friends? What if it is a hate crime? Has the government created a fund to assist this church?

Ad Text Amandla Stenberg: Black Female Bodies Are Treated As Less Than Human

"Do black females lives matter, too?"

That's the big question 16-year-old Amandla Stenberg posed on Instagram on Sunday. The powerful post broke down the cultural double standards that plague black women every day.

"Black features are beautiful, black women are not," Stenberg wrote. "White women are paragons of virtue and desire, black women are objects of fetishism and brutality. This, at least, seems to be the mentality surrounding black femininity and beauty in a society built upon eurocentric beauty standards."

Everybody knows that racism is alive and prospering in America. However, all the news about killing black men and black teenagers, police brutality, unfair sentences and other issues, distract us from the fact that black women are being abused in the most violent ways. Usually they can't stand up for themselves unlike men, so they endure and suffer.

In modern America black women experience more depression than probably during slavery, when everything was obvious, but now racism is hidden behind the mask of tolerance.

Ad Text New York City Agrees to Pay Family of Eric Garner $5.9 Million

New York City has agreed to pay the estate of Eric Garner $5.9 million to settle a lawsuit over his death after he was placed in a chokehold by a New York Police Department officer.

The city didn't admit fault in the settlement, the comptroller's office said in announcing the accord Monday evening.
Jonathan Moore, an attorney for the family, said the city made its offer of $5.9 million Monday and the Garner family, in his office, agreed unanimously to end the case.

"There is no amount of money that would compensate them for their loss," Mr. Moore said. "Eric Garner is dead. He had no reason to die on that day. Whatever you think he was doing, he shouldn't have died."

Yeah right, money won't bring Eric back. He's gone forever, and his his family knows that. But anyway, it's some sort of victory. It's way better than nothing.

Rest in peace, Eric Garner. No justice, no peace.

Ad Text Cleveland judge won't be forced to issue warrants in Rice shooting

A divided Ohio appeals court panel on Friday said it would not force a municipal judge to issue arrest warrants for Cleveland police officers involved in the fatal shooting of 12-year-old Tamir Rice in a city park last November.

Cleveland Municipal Court Judge Ronald Adrine in June found probable cause for Officer Timothy Loehmann, who shot Rice, and his partner, Frank Garmback, to face charges in the shooting.

Loehmann shot Rice twice within seconds of arriving outside a city recreation center on Nov. 22 in response to an emergency call of a man with a gun. Rice, who was playing with an Airsoft-type replica handgun that shoots pellets, died the next day.

By any means the justice system is trying to justify the cops, who should've been never employed even. They shot the poor kid in 2 seconds after they arrived, not even having time to understand the situation. Everyday police use excessive force and weapons against unarmed people. Killers in uniform...

Let's honor Tamir's memory one more time.

Ad Text Teen shot by St. Louis police paralyzed; mom laments gun violence

A teenager shot by city police is paralyzed below the waist, his mother said Sunday as her family copes with another episode of gun violence. Not seven years ago, her teenage daughter was accidentally shot to death.

This time, a firearm in the hand of her son, Brandon Claxton, 16, prompted an officer to shoot him three times about 7:15 p.m. Saturday in a housing complex in the 2500 block of Hodiamont Avenue, officials said. Police encountered him while responding to a call about someone with a stolen pistol.

His mother said that she respected the police and that her son "shouldn't have had the gun." But from what witnesses have told her, she said, "They didn't have to shoot him down like that."

One of three witnesses interviewed Sunday told a reporter that Brandon did have a gun in his hand. But all three said that he did not point a weapon at anyone as he tried to run from officers.

When a white guy walks around with a rifle, nobody bats an eye. When a black guy walks with a pistol (or even a toy gun) - he'll be immediately shot by the police. Have you ever heard about open carry in the United States? Then here we go. Racial prejudice at its finest.

Our condolences to the family.

Ad Text 90-year-old WWII veteran is evicted on stretcher.

The WWII veteran Johnnie H. Hodges refused to leave his house after he was not able to pay his mortgage while caring for his sick wife. Police and ambulance workers had to carry him away on a stretcher.

A 90-year-old Navy veteran lived in his Buffalo home with his wife for decades. But about four years ago, he was taking care of his wife, who had Alzheimer's disease and spent all his income on her rehabilitation. In the process, he defaulted on his mortgage and amassed a huge debt totaling $73,000 to M&T Bank. Unfortunately, due to his default on his mortgage loan payments, he was evicted from his house on a stretcher.

Why does the U.S. government treat military veterans absolutely disgracefully? Why the WWII veterans are literally being treated like human garbage by their own government? How potentially disabled veteran was evicted from his house? How come homelessness and unemployment among American veterans is much higher today than for the general population of the United States of America?

Last Saturday the 16-year-old Brandon Claxton prompted an officer to shoot him three times in a housing complex in Hodiament Avenue. According to police, they responded to a call about someone with a stolen 40-caliber pistol. Brandon Claxton is in critical conditions.

But according to witnesses, Brandon did not point a pistol at anyone but he was trying to run away from the officers.

Where is the video evidence of police shooting? Police Chief Sam Dotson said that there is not a clear view on video. What if police is trying to cover up the story? Did you know that police did not allow Brandon's mother to see her son because he was in custody? Do you believe that police was justified to arrest Brandon?

Cameras don't lie! We need to know the truth whether the boy posed a threat or not!

Ad Text 'We want our chief back'

Last week, in a place that bills itself as the "Friendliest Town on the Eastern Shore," angry residents marched to City Hall, demanding to give back a job for Kelvin Sewell, the community's first black police chief.

On June 29 he was fired amid allegations leveled against white officers of departmental racism. After that the crowd of Sewell's supporters moved to voice their outrage to the Pocomoke City Council with posters that read "We Support Chief Kelvin Sewell."

As a nation we have looked the other way for far too long and it is disgraceful! This time we're not fighting with police, we're fighting for justice. The system is broken, police doesn't protect us and the government cares only about tycoons' interests. So here's a question - who will care about Americans who can't protect themselves? Who will care about us?

Ad Text Made In The US: The Justice Turns Into Business

For years, inmates with non-violent felonies and misdemeanor charges in New York City had to sit in Rikers Island for months awaiting trial, 'cause they couldn't afford to pay bail.

Under the city's new bail initiative announced by Mayor Bill de Blasio last week, some 3,000 low-level offenders are eligible for release without bail. The system needs serious reform. According to the New York Police Department, the biggest part of arrests are low-level offenses like peeing on the street or disorderly conduct.

The New York Daily News reports that 81 percent of the 7.3 million people hit with summonses between 2001 and 2013 were black and Hispanic. So what should we do?

The criminal penal system is antiquated. It should be changed. The worse, it is now designed to be for profit which has led to laws being designed to keep people in prison, rather than rehabilitating. More and more it looks like it's a business.

The first rule of any society is development. At such rate the US government will start to sell indulgences soon.

Our system is not only unfair, but also corrupt! We should explore alternative solutions and limit the number of people in prison to the most violent and potentially dangerous offenders. Only real criminals should be in jail!

Lemme ask you, have you ever seen a one of the tobacco industry executives go to jail? I guess no. We also have never seen the Bush or any other Presidents administrations were brought to justice.

America has a justice system that was supplanted the Jim Crow laws as a means to keep the minorities from developing real opportunities for keeping the very rich from ever being brought to justice.

Ad Text KKK, African-American group plan rallies at South Carolina Capitol

Could you please just close your eyes for a minute? Now, imagine... 70-years after the Third Reich was down, Berlin organizes Nazi military parade. Sounds weird, inconceivable right?

So tell me, why KKK march at South Carolina Capitol draws the ire only of local African-Americans?

A Ku Klux Klan chapter and an African-American group plan overlapping demonstrations on Saturday outside the South Carolina State House, where state officials removed the Confederate battle flag last week.

We have been fought with slavery, Jim Crow laws and etc for REALLY long time so what's the problem today? Nothing good coming out of this mess. So what is the purpose of this march? Hmmm... It feels like this could be billed as "the fight of the century." What do you think about it guys?

Ad Text Another Woman Commits Suicide In Jail

A teen committed suicide in a jail cell an hour after being arrested, another suspicious case of a Black woman dying in police custody in the past week. The second case over a week, huh? How retarded and/or brainwashed by Fox News is one supposed to be to believe this is a coincidence? No way we are gonna buy such bullshit.

The weirdest thing about this specific case is that the suicide was committed just an hour after the arrest. Moreover, the woman was suspected of stealing someone's phone which is quite not a reason for getting to her account. We've got to also take into consideration that 1 in 3 black men go to prison as opposed to a considerably lower rate with the white men (http://www.alternet.org/story/154587/1_in_3_black_men_go_to_prison_the_10_most_disturbing_facts_about_racial_inequality_in_the_u.s._criminal_justice_system).

It definitely seems like there's more to this since until recently taking into custody hasn't been a reason for suicide among black women. Now for some people the only way to deal with police violence at the police stations is simply killing themselves...

Ad Text Police Charges Black Student For Driving To A Well-lit Area

Last time I checked US wasn't involved in any wars or anti-terrorist operations, at least officially. Well, then how come Detroit is no less dangerous then (the city ranks third in the list of top 100 US most dangerous cities)??

When 24-year-old DaJuawn Wallace saw flashing blue police lights in his rearview mirror he chose to proceed with caution since some people are known to be robbed by fake police officers. He preferred to find a well-lit area to pull over in. As a result, he was charged with 'fleeing' police.

People are terrified by the police to such a degree that they even prefer to communicate with officers only in the well-lit areas. And get charged for that. Sometimes it makes me actually think that when not involved in any military operations in the foreign countries, our country's at war with its own citizens with the help of police.

Ad Text Chicago Boy Amari Brown Among 3 Dead, 27 Injured In Just 8-Hour Span

In just an eight-hour span during the Fourth of July weekend, gun violence in Chicago left three people dead and 27 wounded. Amari Brown, a 7-year-old boy on the city's West Side, was the youngest of the fatalities.

Those 30 shootings came between 9:20 p.m Saturday and 4:45 a.m. Sunday. Amari had spent the day celebrating with family and riding his scooter up and down the block where he lived with his grandmother and several other relatives in Humboldt Park. Just before midnight, a gunman opened fire outside a relative's home where Amari and other children were playing, hitting both the 7-year-old and a 26-year-old woman in the chest.

No arrests have been made. Family members will hold a press conference Sunday afternoon to call for Amari's killer to turn himself in.

How can we feel safe here in America? Permanent threat to life follows every American like a shadow. What did this boy do to deserve a bullet in his body? He just played with his friends outdoor. Is human life really worth nothing in our country?

Rest in peace, Amari Brown.

Last time I checked US wasn't involved in any wars or anti-terrorist operations, at least officially. Well, then how come Detroit is no less dangerous then (the city ranks third in the list of top 100 US most dangerous cities)??

When 24-year-old DaJuawn Wallace saw flashing blue police lights in his rearview mirror he chose to proceed with caution since some people are known to be robbed by fake police officers. He preferred to find a well-lit area to pull over in. As a result, he was charged with 'fleeing' police.

People are terrified by the police to such a degree that they even prefer to communicate with officers only in the well-lit areas. And get charged for that. Sometimes it makes me actually think that when not involved in any military operations in the foreign countries, our country's at war with its own citizens with the help of police.

Ad Text Andy Hallinan – a new justice fighter who banned Muslims from his shop

Andy Hallinan, a Florida gun shop owner has banned Muslim customers from his store. He declared his shop a “Muslim-free zone” in response to a shooting in Chattanooga, where a Kuwait-born terrorist killed five US Marines. Hallinan announced his store’s new policy sitting against the Confederate flag. The video posted in Facebook became popular.

What we can say? Hallinan is completely right! If the government cannot provide our security, then we must do everything possible to provide it. A lot of Muslims become Islamists, who pose a real threat to our national security. We consider that it is really dangerous to sell arms to Muslims, as there’re a lot of terrorists among them. The 2nd amendment was written for people, but it doesn’t relieve people of responsibility.

Ad Text A number of refugees has increased since Obama became the President States across the country were filled with flows of refugees since Obama became the President. The U.S. refugee admissions database wrapsnet.org states that 437,829 new refugees came to the USA since Obama first took office. Most of them were placed in Texas (46,351), California (44,162) and New York (26,293). Many of refugees were placed in Ohio (14,855), Florida (21,613), Virginia (9,395), Colorado (11,300) and Nevada (3,421).

Such active provision of a shelter for refugees sooner or later will lead to the fact that the number of terrorist attacks in the USA will increase. The US Homeland Security Committee considers that the administration is admitting too many refugees from Iraq and Syria, a hotbed of ISIS terrorism. Perhaps new terrorist attacks won't be so large as the 9/11 but there will be more terrorist attacks if the immigration policy won't be tightened.

We have a lot of problems that require an active response and decisions from the government: poverty, the problems of veterans, homelessness, racism, law enforcement system and so on. Is it possible to offer a better life for refugees if not all US citizens live normally?

Ad Text The Census Bureau published the new data in its International Data Base, which contains population estimates and projections up to the year 2050. The figure from the Census Bureau is a calculation of net migration—meaning the total number of immigrants who will arrive in the United States in 2015 would actually be larger than 1.24 million.

Of course, the United States is the country of immigrants. But if America had huge undeveloped lands and needed workers at the earliest stage, today there is a jobs deficit. Today the government must restrict immigration that is a reason of interethnic tensions in the United States. High unemployment rate fuels intolerance toward immigrants that are ready to work illegally for low wages. So, besides social problem, immigrants threaten the U.S. economy. Those who work illegally don't pay taxes that are an important part of state budget. Working illegally, they break the law. Lack of immigration restrictions increases crime rates.

Moreover, more and more immigrants cannot speak English. One-fifth of people in the United States speak a foreign language at home, according to a report of the Center for Immigration Studies.

You see, increasing ammount of immigrants in the United States creates social and economic problems. However, we have a risk not only to worsen the U.S. economy, but also to lose our culture. America can't be the Tower of Babel, we cannot allow everybody to live here if immigration threatens us. We don't hate foreigners, we are glad to see tourists from every corner of the world, but we cannot allow them to stay here.

It's the bathos of stupidity to stimulate immigration when it creates enormous problems for the nation.

Ad Text Marine Corps General Joseph Dunford told the Congress last week that the deaths of 500 soldiers in Iraq and Afghanistan could be attributed to Iran. This statement sounds strange on the background of rapprochement between Obama's administration and Tehran.

Although, this rapprochement in itself looks strange. We would remind you that Tehran has never expressed its condolences for the Iran hostage crisis. Moreover, the Supreme Leader of Iran Ali Hosseini Khamenei is too disrespectful to the United States despite of friendly actions of Obama's administration. And Iranian military command claims that Iran is ready to come into collision with America at any moment.

The Iran deal is a shame of the United States. Senate Republicans were right when they expressed their distrust of Iranian government. It's not clear why Obama has refused containment of Iran that is an potential enemy not only for the United States, but also for the rest world. Barack Obama is, by all appearances, a true traitor of the United States. And it's not empty words – the rapprochement with Iran is either a treachery or stupidity.

Ad Text NAACP wants removal of Confederate generals from Stone Mountain

Three days after the Confederate battle flag was ceremonially removed from the South Carolina Statehouse grounds in Columbia, Atlanta chapter of the NAACP officially called for the removal of Stone Mountain's iconic Confederate Memorial carving.

According to WSB-TV in Atlanta, the organization calls for the removal of all symbols of the Confederacy from the park, as well as any other state-owned buildings, parks and lands.

The USA is out of balance now. We loose our history! The gays, lesbians and trans-sexuals have more rights now then other folks. They bring pervert culture in our houses as something normal. Today, LGBT community has turned into the head and everyone else is the tail.

We inherit the history, we make it, and we are fated to become part of it. What kind of inheritance next generation will get? The rainbow flag that is offensive and a symbol of hate. Instead of delete a big part of our history, can we ban the rainbow from public display?

Ad Text A terrorist attack was conducted at two U.S. military sites in Chattanooga

Mohammad Youssef Abdulazeez was shot and killed by police after he attacked two military sites in Chattanooga, Tennessee and killed four U.S. Marines at the Navy Operational Support Center and Marine Corps Reserve Center. Authorities say a man was a practicing Muslim. At present FBI is conducting an investigation. According to his beliefs, Mohammad was a fundamental Islamist. Having examined after his death his social pages, FBI has found that he kept a blog and had a note where he said that he conducted a terrorist act in obedience to Allah. It is notable that the terrorist attack was conducted in the last day of Ramadan. It is noteworthy that in his letter the terrorist didn't refer to ISIS or Al-Qaeda; he acted in his own volition.

We don't want to stir up Islamophobia, but if such manifestations of Islam have place, it is very sorrowful for the United States. The situation in the Middle East and the extensive propaganda of ISIS make ordinary Muslims to become radical Islamists and take the path of war and death. If people on their own commit such attacks, the American society must take it more seriously. The society should develop a new behavioral model towards Islam, according to which, on the one hand Muslims and Christians will live comfortable together. And on the other hand, Muslims won't tend to radical activities and the destruction of peaceful life of Americans.

Ad Text The spread of hatred in the American society

On Saturday there were two protests: a Ku Klux Klan rally in South Carolina and an anti-racism protest. About 2,000 people arrived to South Carolina's statehouse. Some of them present the KKK's rally against the removal of the Confederate flag, while others were from the New Black Panther party and Black Lives matter groups, holding the Republic of New Afrika flag.

It is a very clear signal for the federal government that the protest obtains a systematic and ideological basis. The Klan wanted to underline the traditional heritage of the Confederate flag. Black protesters, on the contrary stand against racism. There were also many anti-racism supporters of other races. The main problem is hatred which is spread among our society. The government does nothing to solve the matter. If America is a land of free, we should clear our country of racism. But on the other hand we shouldn't refuse our history and our traditions.

Ad Text The U.S. flag hasn't been lowered in honor of the murdered Marines

Monday morning, July 20, the US flag continued to fly at the top of the White House and the US capitol building despite the fact that a gunman killed five US Marines in Chattanooga, Tenn. President Obama hasn't ordered to lower a flag, though a federal law states that the flag shall be flown at half-staff upon the deaths of principal figures or the governor can lower the US flag in his or her state following the deaths of officials or members of the US Army. By contrast, Obama ordered the flags to half-staff following on the same day that as the shootings at the Sandy Hook Elementary School. The flag was lowered to half-staff the day following the terrorist attack during the Boston marathon, the shooting at the Washington Navy Yard and the following the death of Nelson Mandela. But it hasn't yet been lowered in honor of the service members murdered in Tennessee.

By doing so Obama shows the highest degree of disrespect for the fallen soldiers. It turns out that for him the soldiers as well as veterans do not deserve any attention or respect. Soldiers are needed only when it is necessary to send them to the next unknown operation. They considered as meat. But in reality, they are our heroes! They were victims of a terrorist attack. They were victims of a man who at first won refugee status and then decided to kill in the name of Allah.

In general during the Obama presidency the country was divided in many ways: racism became more evident, the number of illegal immigrants, who do not even bother to learn English, because it's enough to speak Spanish, has increased.

Ad Text Remember when African Americans couldn't drink from the same drinking fountains as whites? Remember when gay people couldn't get married? Both scenarios sound so ridiculous.
Especially when you think about how much money is to be gained if same-sex couples are legally allowed to get married.

A majority of small business owners believe companies shouldn't be allowed to withhold goods or services from lesbian, gay, bisexual or transgender people based on an owner's religious beliefs, according to a survey released Monday.

Of course marriage is good for the business - no matter who it is that is marrying. It's a billion dollar industry in our country!
I am certain that if a state supported marriage for all, then business would flourish. No one would be offended by not being considered legitimate, when their feelings are legitimate.

Ad Text 'THAT'S NOT WHAT I AM': TRANSGENDER PERSON FIGHTS TO CHANGE 'F' TO 'M' ON DRIVER'S LICENSE.

One of the friends of our group shared his story with us! He has been discriminated against by local authorities in Louisville, Ky.

There's a gap between Kentucky law and federal law. People trying to change the gender on a passport only need to be in transition, not post-surgery.

But many transgender people never complete the surgery due to economical reasons, health issues etc. It seems that the law does not care about these people's circumstances. So typical of bureaucrats.

It is very important for every transgender to be able to change his/her identification to reflect who they really are. It's not just about person dressed as a man one day and then dressed as a woman the next, or vice versa. It is about much more deep, more complex things. An authentic transgender man or woman only presents as the gender they truly are; And not the gender they were assigned to at birth.

Transgender people are not trying to trick anyone by asking for identification changes. They are trying to avoid as much confusion as absolutely possible. Because it is confusing enough to be the gender different from the one you were assigned to at birth.

Please share your stories with us, because united we can stand against injustice and inequality!

Ad Text HOMOPHOBIA STILL RUNNING STRONG IN AMERICA.

Controversial artist Ed Freeman sparked fury among conservative patriots after sharing his own version of the 1945 image.

The outrage was caused by artist's artwork recreating iconic Iwo Jima photo, with a gay pride flag and half-naked men has received death threats. That's a bit too harsh treatment for an artist, don't you think? What's this, the American version of Je suis Charlie?

Joe Rosenthal's picture of soldiers hauling a flag pole up after declaring the island of Iwo Jima secure during the Second World War won the Pulitzer Prize in 1945.

Around 70,000 U.S. troops fought more than 20,000 Japanese. It wasn't a fair fight back then, and it's not a fair fight today. But there's nothing disrespectful in this image. Isn't the imitation is the best form of homage?

Ad Text We have a method in place called, don't vote these morons into office!

Passing the "First Amendment Defense Act" introduced by Sen. Mike Lee has been anti-LGBT conservatives' top priority since the Supreme Court brought marriage equality to all 50 states. It's part of the National Organization for Marriage's post-Obergefell plan and Republican presidential candidate pledge, and the Family Research Council mentions it almost daily. Lee joined NPR this week to defend the bill, basically admitting that all it does is enable anti-gay discrimination.

Lee framed his concern as one about the government discriminating against religious institutions — for discriminating against people in same-sex marriages. It's the latter he wants to allow by ensuring that the government never penalizes any religious institution that refuses to recognize a same-sex couple's marriage, or employ them, house them, or serve them.

Mr. Lee, you are ridiculous! You're just going to have to get over that fact that we have full Federal civil rights now. Or don't! We will go on happily living our lives while you froth at the mouth and throw a fit because we're being treated equally under the law!

Ad Text PLEASE NO HATE! JUST LET US EAT CAKE!

Wedding cake is back in the news with developments in both the Oregon and Colorado bakery cases involving discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation. In Oregon, judgment has been finalized against Sweet Cakes by Melissa, requiring Aaron and Melissa Klein to pay a $135,000 fine for refusing service to a same-sex couple. Meanwhile, in Colorado, Jack Phillips of Masterpiece Cakeshop, is appealing the ruling against him for refusing to serve a same-sex couple.

In the wake of the Supreme Court's ruling in Obergefell v. Hodges, conservatives are eager to highlight Phillips and the Kleins as evidence that religious freedom is under attack. In fact, they have actually invented a new claim about how these bakers' "free speech" is under attack and how they're thus the real victims.

There's a simple solution. Since they won't agree to the conditions for having a license to do business with the public, they shouldn't have a license to do business with the public! This is not a free speech issue, it is an issue of American law! They can speak about their bigotry and ignorance, not to practice it!

Wedding cake is back in the news with developments in both the Oregon and Colorado bakery cases involving discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation. In Oregon, judgment has been finalized against Sweet Cakes by Melissa, requiring Aaron and Melissa Klein to pay a $135,000 fine for refusing service to a same-sex couple. Ad Text Why do people hate each other?

That's an enormous question, and it's one that eludes an answer.

Why there's so rarely we see acceptance, understanding, tolerance towards people who are different from "normal" in any way?

I hope that someday all the hatred, all the xenophobia and prejudice between us will ceased to exist.

And I'm so grateful for my fabulous loving friends who I have shared so much brilliant times!

Ad Text That's really cool! I think all people must realise that sexuality is not, fundamentally, about who you want to have sex with – but who you are, and who you love...

One of the execs on children's cartoon series Steven Universe has confirmed a lesbian romance between two characters.

The popular show is based on a young boy named Steven, who grows up with three magical aliens – the 'Crystal Gems' Garnet, Amethyst and Pearl. The show, which has already won praise for including a number of strong, female characters in a comparatively male-dominated genre, has now hinted at further diversity.

That's sooo nice! More and more shows go that route, even if it's probably just for advertising it's still good.

Ad Text Oh God! Just remember: you know you're doing something right when all the bigots and racist idiots are angry with you...

For decades, conservative Christians who oppose LGBT equality have singled out the federal government or secular atheists as their preferred enemy in public settings, blasting both groups for supposedly attacking “traditional marriage” or infringing on their religious liberty.

Yet in the months surrounding the recent U.S. Supreme Court decision to legalize same-sex marriage across the country, right-wing Christians have become increasingly willing to cast blame — seemingly hypocritically — on a group they have often dismissed or outright ignored: Progressive Christians, especially those who support marriage equality.

I believe religions should teach love, they must stop teaching hatred! And I noticed while progressive Christians are constantly under attack from conservative Christians, they're not the ones screaming “persecution”. They are just tired of the persecution.

Ad Text Oh happy day! More and more of the "morally superior" cult members tripping over their sex scandals!

Former Archbishop John Neinstedt is "dumbfounded" by allegations that he frequented gay clubs, used "poppers," and made sexual advances on men. Neinstedt has called homosexuality "evil" in the past, and thinks equal marriage laws are a Satanic "man-made experiment" that would harm children.

Oh, look at this! So much for humility... just another poor white Christian "victim"! His Assholiness can play dumb for just so long before it all comes out in the open..

Ad Text CAITLYN JENNER: "TRANS PEOPLE DESERVE YOUR RESPECT"

Caitlyn accepted the Arthur Ashe Courage Award at the 2015 ESPY Awards.

Caitlyn is amazing! It was her first public appearance since announcing her decision to transition.

And her speech brought me to tears. It was very touching and thought provoking.

She spoke about her own personal experience so far as a transgender woman. But she also dedicated a significant percentage of her speech to a thoughtful and touching discussion of the vast number of issues facing the larger transgender community.

In her past life Caitlyn was known worldwide as a sports hero. Today she is an American hero of a great courage. Because it takes courage to stand up and do everything she has done and is doing.

Ad Text FEMALE SOCCER PLAYERS GET MARRIED, HAVE PERFECT MESSAGE FOR HATERS!

Meet professional soccer players Erin McLeod and Ella Masar, who play for Houston Dash in the National Women's Soccer League. The long-time partners married this week, just days after the end of the Women's World Cup.

Along with sincere congratulations, the couple also received plenty of negative messages, from people who didn't think two women should get married.

Masar had this perfect message for those people. In spite of all their hatred her message is full of love because love wins despite any obstacles!

"Thank you for praying for me and reinforcing my own prayers because as you pray, "Lord please help Ella, allow her to see her sin for loving that woman, for respecting her, being faithful, honoring her, etc ..." Know I am saying the same thing, "my Heavenly Father, thank you for allowing me find my better half, for finding someone that strengthens my faith and allows me to be the person I always imagined. Thank you for teaching me what truly loving someone and others is all about, amen."

Congratulations, you two! We hope you both have a full and wonderful life together!

Ad Text Miley Cyrus Wants to Marry Her Girlfriend Stella Maxwell

The 22-year-old Bangerz singer and 24-year-old Victoria's Secret model Stella Maxwell have reportedly been dating since they met on Instagram in April. While it's only been a few months, they're ready to take the next step. Miley's told friends that Stella is the one. And she wants to make a huge statement with an over-the-top wedding in the fall! She can't stop talking about how in love she is and how she wants the whole world to know...

Miley came out as bisexual recently, not all of her relationships have been "straight, heterosexual" ones. She also told Paper magazine how she came out to her mom when she was 14, saying, "I remember telling her I admire women in a different way. And she asked me what that meant. And I said, 'I love them. I love them like I love boys.'"

We hope Miley can move on from the wrecking balls and think about wedding bells once she's ready!

Ad Text CONGRATS TO ALL THE GAY COUPLES!! After a long fight, you have your much deserved rights!

Same-sex married couples can start applying for Social Security and veterans benefits in all 50 states even though there are still issues to fix as the federal government works to implement the Supreme Court ruling allowing gay couples to marry nationwide.

It is good to be happy! Maybe one day our rights won't be determined based on what group we belong to. Until then some will be more equal than others.

I think as long as government provides special benefits to married people, all citizens should have equal access to those benefits, regardless of whom they love!

Ad Text The Journey Begins: Caitlyn Jenner launches weekly blog on LGBT issues

The most fabulous trans icon Caitlyn Jenner is a blogger now. She posted the first letter in what is to be a series of personal posts for WhoSay Monday, titled, "The Journey Begins."

The blog will be dedicated to become a voice for the LGBT community.

"Up until now, I have totally isolated myself from the transgender community so I have a lot of catching up to do," Jenner says. "I feel such a responsibility to this courageous group to try to get it right and tell all sides of the story. To me, that's always the biggest question: am I doing it right?"

Finally our community got someone who will represent our position and actually help people struggling with being transgendered, like helping them with surgery, medications and etc.

Caitlyn is a real new American hero!

Ad Text Controversy surrounding the flag only heats animosity among Americans. And it is becoming dangerous.

So, a family from Moseley, Virginia was threatened at gunpoint for waving the Confederate flag on their own private property on Monday night. While the family was expressing their First Amendment right by waving the flag in their own driveway next to a busy highway. A man driving an SUV pulled into the driveway, took out his gun, chambered a round, pointed it at the family.

"He slammed on the brakes and when he got right beside me, he pulled out a gun, chambered a round and told me my cause wasn't worth anything now," Mark Wilson said.

When one spits upon the law because he thinks that it's amoral, it is beginning a chaos. Liberals want to ban a confederate flag because slavery was in the 18th and 19th centuries. They don't want to understand that slavery was legal in many countries of the world, but nobody wants to ban a flag of England or France.

Activists and groups like the NAACP are also calling for statues and monuments to Confederate leaders to be demolished, including the carving at Stone Mountain, the largest bas relief sculpture in the world. Some are even demanding that Washington, DC be renamed in the name of political correctness because George Washington owned slaves.

Liberals actually want to destroy American history and culture. Americans should be guided by the law, because sometimes moral is not clear. If somebody thinks that the Democratic party is amoral, nobody demands to eliminate the party.

Continue to stay for the First amendment! Let's stop the chaos!
